‘The Fairway’ Branch of Penn Community Bank Opens in Abington Township

Leading Pennsylvania independent, mutual financial organization opens new retail location in the Baederwood Shopping Center, its first location in Montgomery County

ABINGTON, Pa. (October 2017) – Penn Community Bank is proud to announce the opening of its newest branch in Abington Township, its first retail location in Montgomery County.

The new branch in the Baederwood Shopping Center enables Penn Community Bank to bring its full range of banking, lending, insurance and investments products and services and its community-minded business philosophy to the Abington area.

“We are excited to be a part of this thriving community, and we thank our business partners and local officials for giving us such a warm welcome to the Jenkintown and Abington area,” said Penn Community Bank President and CEO Jeane Vidoni Coyle.

Penn Community Bank’s new branch features a Home Loan Center and has a full-time mortgage specialist, Casey “Oche” Bridgeford, of Norristown, available to consult with customers. Branch team members include Branch Manager Kim Wissen, of Philadelphia, Sales and Service Manager Grant Hager, of Glenside, and Customer Service Supervisor Maureen Stephenson, of Jenkintown.

The new branch in Montgomery County comes as a result, in part, of a merger with Cheltenham Hills Savings Bank, a mutual savings bank that operated from one location in Abington. That location, at 2 Hidden Lane, will close permanently on Dec. 29, 2017.

The second-largest mutual financial institution in Pennsylvania, Penn Community Bank is not publicly traded and does not have to make decisions with investors in mind. Instead, it focuses on developing long-standing relationships with customers and the community.

Penn Community Bank commits up to five percent of its net income each year to charitable groups that serve the local community. The opening of the bank’s first Montgomery County branch offers the opportunity to strengthen relationships with nonprofits in MontCo, including The Breathing Room Foundation, which is headquartered in Jenkintown and offers care and support to local families battling cancer. Penn Community Bank recently served as a sponsor for the Foundation’s fundraiser, the 2017 Valley Road Run.
